Instructions

1. Identify key steps

To make a great process flowchart, you need to understand the key steps of the workflow you're mapping.
Define the starting point. Add the next step in the process. What action or change will happen to move the process from the starting point?

2. Connect and guide

Now, use the arrows to define the directional flow of the process. Continue adding more steps and connecting them via arrows. Use different shapes to identify different types of events, such as actions, decisions, inputs, and outputs.

3. Share and collab

Share your flowchart with the team to get their input, ensuring the process is easy to understand and follow.
